champagne

when you think of celebration, you think of champagne. the champagne region of france consists of 35,000 hectares. of this, 31,000 hectares are under vine and highly regulated to ensure consistent quality. each champagne house offers its own unique experience when drinking their product.

champagne nv

champagne as a non-vintage is all about the maisons 'house style'. the styles vary by their vineyard grape selection, blend, wine making process and dosage. never under estimate the quality of the nv as this is how a champagne house is traditionally judged.

chianti

historically associated with a squat flask enclosed in a straw basket, these wines are produced only in the chianti region of central tuscan. the recipe for chianti was created by baron bettina ricasoli in the middle of the 19th century and consisted of 70% sangiovese, 15% canaiolo and 15% malvasia. however, in 1995 the laws where changed so a chianti can be 100% sangiovese, but must have a minimum of 80% sangiovese.

brunello di montalcino

brunello di montalcino is a wine made with 100% sangiovese. it is a visibly clear, brilliant wine, with a bright garnet colour and it has an intense perfume, persistent, ample and ethereal character. one can recognize scents of undergrowth, aromatic wood, berries, light vanilla and jam.

to the palate, the wine has an elegant harmonious body, vigorous and racy, it is dry with a lengthy aromatic finish.

tignanello

“this was the first sangiovese to be aged in barriques, the first red wine to be blended with non-traditional varieties (like cabernet) and one of the first chianti reds not to use white grapes. tignanello is a milestone. it is made from a selection of sangiovese, cabernet sauvignon and cabernet franc. the wine is aged in barriques for about 12 months and for a further 12 months in the bottles.

the wine shows an intense nose of red fruit along with hints of sweet spices and underbrush. on the palate, the flavors are fresh and vibrant with supple and balanced tannins. the finish and aftertaste are long and sustained.”

nebbiolo

indigenous to piemonte, these wines are characterised by the ample amount of tannin and acidity. with the heavier styles of barolo and barbaresco needing to age at least five years before drinking, the lighter styles of langhe, carima and gattinara tend to be ready to drink two to three years after vintage. typically, these wines show tar, roses, cherries, raspberries and tobacco.

barolo and barbaresco

notwithstanding the fact that both wines are produced with 100% nebbiolo, in neighboring areas less than 10 miles apart, there is still a distinct difference between the two. barbaresco ripens earlier than barolo, giving it a shorter maceration time, allowing it to be ready to drink earlier. however, this means it does not age as well. barolo takes a little longer to be drinkable but will age long into the future.

cabernet sauvignon & bordeaux blends

cabernet sauvignon is a small dark grape that commonly shows cassis, violet, chocolate and mint however it changes from region to region. australia has the coonawarra, margaret river, and yarra valley to name a few fine regions creating exceptional cabernet sauvignon. bordeaux blends commonly consist of cabernet sauvignon and merlot, including cabernet franc, malbec and petit verdot. the respected australian blend of cabernet sauvignon and shiraz, delivers a powerful wine, as cabernet offers the back bone and structure whilst the shiraz delivers the weight and sweetness derived from fruit.

shiraz + syrah & blends

these are still australia's most popular red wines. the rich, ripe and intense characters of barossa, mclaren vale, heathcote and the hunter valley are still driving these wines. in recent years however those wanting wines of more subtlety, spice and finesse are enjoying the cooler climate exponents from the margaret river, pemberton, adelaide hills and hawkes bay to name a few. although shiraz and syrah mean the same, some producers are using the word syrah to express their rhone valley winemaking approach.

dessert / sweet wine

dessert wines are very diverse in their styles, from fine and delicate through to rich and unctuous. whether the wines are late picked or infected with a botrytis mould the wines are created to display a higher sugar content and a far more intense fruit expression. these wines are best when dry at the finish and can accompany savory foods, spicy dishes, fresh fruits and some soft cheeses.
