champagne

when you think of celebration, you think of champagne. the champagne region of france consists of 35,000 hectares. of this, 31,000 hectares are under vine and highly regulated to ensure consistent quality. each champagne house offers its own unique experience when drinking their product.

champagne nv

champagne as a non-vintage is all about the maisons 'house style'. the styles vary by their vineyard grape selection, blend, wine making process and dosage. never under estimate the quality of the nv as this is how a champagne house is traditionally judged.

red wines

schiaiva

this grape variety had its first documented historical mention at the end of the middle ages, and it has played a central role in alto adige/südtirol winegrowing since the sixteenth century.

schiaiva presents aromas of sweet cherries, red currants, raspberries and strawberries. added to this, there are often tones of almonds and violets.

the schiaiva grape produces a light wine low in tannins, with moderate alcohol content and low acidity

2016 k.martini&sohn vernatsch (schiaiva) doc trentino alto adige italy 57

pinot meunier

pinot meunier is traditionally used in blend to produce sparkling wines. as still wine it has a deep ruby colour, a bouquet of dried rose petals and culinary spices. the palate is intense with cherries note and well balanced savoury spicy notes

2017 best's great western 'old vine' great western vic 218

pinot noir

pinot noir traditionally presents slightly lighter than most reds delivering cherry and red fruit notes when young. other characters include spice, barnyard and toasty barrel notes which deliver greater complexity. there is nothing light about the structure of a well-made pinot noir as it gives up power, texture and a length of palate that rivals any red grape variety.

morellino di scansano

morellino di scansano is a dry red wine from the coastal hills of southern tuscan in italy. one of the region's lesser-known docg wines. his style of sangiovese differs from its northern brethren due to the ripeness levels it can achieve in southern tuscan. the result is a rounder and more savory style of wine. regulations stipulate that at least 85% of the wine must be made from this variety, with the rest coming from other permitted tuscan red grapes. unlike many docgs, this wine does not require ageing and can be released in the march after the harvest, less than eight months later; logically, this wine is characterized by lively freshness and crisp character. other traits come in the form of cherry, pomegranate, plum, leather, cedar and spice notes

chianti

historically associated with a squat flask enclosed in a straw basket, these wines are produced only in the chianti region of central tuscan. the recipe for chianti was created by baron bettina ricasoli in the middle of the 19th century and consisted of 70% sangiovese, 15% canaiolo and 15% malvasia. however, in 1995 the laws were changed so a chianti can be 100% sangiovese but must have a minimum of 80% sangiovese.

montepulciano

vino nobile di montepulciano was designated italy's first docg wine in 1980, in an attempt to protect its traditional status and ensure its high quality. italian law requires that these wines be at least 70 percent sangiovese grapes (known in montepulciano as prugnolo gentile) and aged for a minimum of two years. the result is a rich, red wine with great depth of flavor and complexity, but still bright with notes of red fruit rosso di montepulciano is made with the same sangiovese blend as vino nobile di montepulciano, with less-stringent aging requirements. lighter-bodied and ready to drink sooner than vino nobile, rosso di montepulciano still shares the classic flavor profile of the pricier wine

tignanello

“this was the first sangiovese to be aged in barriques, the first red wine to be blended with non-traditional varieties (like cabernet) and one of the first chianti reds not to use white grapes. tignanello is a milestone. it is made from a selection of sangiovese, cabernet sauvignon and cabernet franc. the wine is aged in barriques for about 12 months and for a further 12 months in the bottles.

the wine shows an intense nose of red fruit along with hints of sweet spices and underbrush. on the palate, the flavors are fresh and vibrant with supple and balanced tannins. the finish and aftertaste are long and sustained”

giuseppe quintarelli

quintarelli's history evolved around the winery, which is located in cerè near the village of negrar. quintarelli's family has lived here since 1924. quintarelli's father, silvio, bought some land after world war i and established his own estate. giuseppe quintarelli started working on the estate in 1950, extended it and brought improvements in vine growing and winemaking. he experimented widely even while working within the region's traditions.

unfortunately, giuseppe quintarelli passed away in january 2012, aged 84, but his family continues to follow his vision and style. one of his four daughters, franca and her husband giampaolo grigoli manage the estate. giampaolo grigoli guided our steps through the winery and hosted our tasting. they have 10 hectares of vineyards with three hectares on the hill called monte ca' paletta next to the winery. they use the pergola veronese system for the local varieties (corvina and corvinone), and guyot for the international varieties (cabernet sauvignon, cabernet franc and merlot). sustainable vine growing is at the core what they do.

at quintarelli there is an obsession about quality: from the product itself, to the quality of the corks, glass and bottle caps. the labels stand out with their charming and idiosyncratic handwritten style. they treat wine with respect and patience, allowing it to develop to its maximum potential before it is bottled. their wine doesn't come cheap. it is the most expensive in valpolicella, but it is heavenly

barolo and barbaresco

notwithstanding the fact that both wines are produced with 100% nebbiolo, in neighboring areas less than 10 miles apart, there is still a distinct difference between the two. barbaresco ripens earlier than barolo, giving it a shorter maceration time, allowing it to be ready to drink earlier. however, this means it does not age as well. barolo takes a little longer to be drinkable but will age long into the future.

shiraz + syrah & blends

these are still australia's most popular red wines. the rich, ripe and intense characters of barossa, mclaren vale, heathcote and the hunter valley are still driving these wines. in recent years however those wanting wines of more subtlety, spice and finesse are enjoying the cooler climate exponents from the margaret river, pemberton, adelaide hills and hawkes bay to name a few. although shiraz and syrah mean the same, some producers are using the word syrah to express their rhone valley winemaking approach.

dessert / sweet wine

dessert wines are very diverse in their styles, from fine and delicate through to rich and unctuous. whether the wines are late picked or infected with a botrytis mould the wines are created to display a higher sugar content and a far more intense fruit expression. these wines are best when dry at the finish and can accompany savory foods, spicy dishes, fresh fruits and some soft cheeses.
